In April, Celebrate

Autism Acceptance

Autism isn't a disease or an illness. It's a neurodevelopmental disability that affects how people experience the world. Autistic people communicate, love, play, interact, and learn... just differently than neurotypical people.

We ask you to wear and use #redinstead (or gold, or rainbow!) to show your love and acceptance of Autistic people everywhere!

Red symbolizes love and celebration

The infinity symbol represents diversity, infinite variations, and endless possibilities

For more information, visit autismsociety.org, autismacceptance.org, or the Autistic Self-Advocacy Network (ASAN). #actuallyautistic

April is Autism Acceptance Month.
